

Saturday 8th December 2007

‘The Fall and Rise of Intonation’

Speaker: Gerald Kelly, Northumbria University

Author of ‘How to Teach Pronunciation’ (Longman)

In this paper I aim to show how intonation teaching is possible and necessary at all levels of language learning and how it can be simplified (and hence made useful) for the classroom. I will compare the treatment of intonation with the treatment of grammar and lexis, and I will attempt to show how intonation can be (and should be) an integrated part of any teacher’s repertoire of teaching skills.

Venue:

Randolph School of English
63 Frederick Street
Edinburgh
EH2 1LH

<http://www.randolph.org.uk>

10.00: Christmas food and drinks

10.30 – 12.00: Presentation

There will be the SATEFL AGM after the Presentation

Non-members welcome - a small fee will be charged

For further details contact: Joanna Coley - j.coley@hw.ac.uk